Active Ingredients

Cranberry, Goldenrod, Vitamin C, Vitamin B12

Cranberry: the action of cranberry is essentially due to Proanthocyanidins, abbreviated with the acronym PAC. They have a mechanical action on Escherichia coli, the bacterium responsible for 80% to 85% of urinary disorders. In fact, the PAC have the property to fixate on the end of the pili or fimbriae of E. coli, thus preventing the bacteria to be able to fix on the wall. In addition, the assets of the Cranberry attack the biofilm and the bacteria not yet fixed are eliminated without fail to reproduce. Bacteria fixed instead come off and are eliminated from the urinary tract. This prevents the infection and propagation.

Goldenrod: as confirmed by published scientific studies, the medicinal herb is an excellent remedy for the problems of the urinary tract: cystitis, gallstones, kidney stones, nephritis. It has a diuretic effect thanks to the presence of flavonoids and triterpenes. Then plays an anti-inflammatory and vessel-protective action. The German E Commission recognizes the species virgaurea an anti-inflammatory effect useful in the treatment of diseases of the urinary tract and provides for the use of their drugs in kidney stones, in the gravel. The main active ingredients of the drug (dried flowering tops) are: monoterpenes, sesquiterpenes, triterpenoid saponins, phenolic glycosides, flavonoids (rutin, quercetin, kaempferol, and their derivatives), tannins, polisaccaridie diterpenes.

Vitamin C: important antioxidant vitamin essential for maintaining the body's defenses against damage caused by free radicals. Loans electives of Vitamin C and Vitamin E in therapy are the manifestations due to secondary deficiency to reduced dietary intake or to an increased need or to a reduced absorption.

Vitamin B12: Vitamin B12 is involved in many biochemical reactions essential for good cell function. The elective use of vitamin B12 is the prophylaxis and the treatment of the manifestations of deficiencies for poor dietary intake, reduced absorption or increased demand.
